

Crater Face

BAND STORY

"Jon Kovacs had grown up in the cut, Greenville, Pa. I was the only punk amongst a town of hicks. I was the singer in several bands throughout highschool but after the guitarist in my band "Stoke" left I had to learn to play guitar. I am heavily influenced by bands like Greenday, Dashboard and the Beatles. I didnt start writing music until July 17th 2003 after my then finace Renea broke my heart, this is the * that came from that. I dropped out of Pittsurgh Technical Institute and went on the parking lot tour playing carious parking lots from my car. i started my own label "No-Future Records" in my kitchen in late 2004 where i've recorded several low budget albums including "You may be Pretty but your ugly inside." I'm also playing rhythm guitar for the band Sheffield Terrace and working on an album with local artist Ashley Hall. Hate, Pain, Fear, Loss and Loveis my subject matter put to basic punk guitar riffs and sung with my lack of talent voice. So see you at the show. I got the name Crater Face from when a chick tried to get with me I shut her down so she called me Crater Face."
